Intermediate Size Daffodil Classes

An intermediate daffodil must clearly show characteristics that render it too large for miniature classes and normally too small to complete in standard classes. As a guideline, flowers are expected to be between 50 and 80mm in diameter with the perianth spread out. Stems are to be in proportion to flower size.

A list of approved intermediate sized daffodils can be obtained from the Show Secretary. Please note that intermediates other than seedlings must be named. Seedlings should be labelled as such and breeding indicated, if known.

Miniature Daffodil Classes

A miniature is a cultivar that should not exceed 50mm in diameter and is:

- a) included on the N.Z. or American Daffodil Society's approved list of miniatures (available from the Show Secretary), or
- b) any Australian raised daffodil whether in commerce or shown under seedling number, that satisfies the judges that it has the attributes that would qualify for inclusion in a list of miniatures.

Please note that miniatures other than seedlings must be named.

Seedlings should be labelled as such and breeding indicated, if known.
